Liver is the critical detoxifying organ that protects the body from toxin overload.

The body of the bird has to constantly deal with toxins. Right from mycotoxins such as aflatoxins, ochratoxins, zearalenones, T2 toxins, Fumosin which contaminate the feed, to metabolic products of precursors of drug and chemicals. In addition to this, the bird encounters harmful pollutants from environment and the organic debris of pathogens. Such high interaction with toxins may lead to cumulative toxicosis.

Normally, the Liver is supposed to break down and eliminate the toxins that reach it through portal systems. But in case of toxin overload in the body affects the functioning of the liver and requires urgent cleansing & restoration.
